

The Grand Ferdinand Hotel, Vienna

Grounded in history, spirit and cultivated elegance.

The Grand Ferdinand is the only Austrian-run hotel on the Ringstraße. The hotel's motto is "A hotel that celebrates tradition by moving forward, not by looking back".

The hotel, which opened in Autumn 2015, is owned by the Weitzer family. In 2003, Florian Weitzer took over the reigns of the family business and a 100 year legacy.

He had wanted to add a glamorous hotel to Vienna's scene for a long time, and he draws on the Ringstraße's heyday to revive Viennese elegance at the Grand Ferdinand, combining the elegance of the past with the best modern amenities.

With its 186 rooms and three restaurants, the hotel combines the beauty and relish of times past with the finest amenities around now.

The harmonious overall composition is graced with extravagant details – from the courtyard oasis and rooftop pool to the Lobmeyr chandeliers.

Guests of Grand Ferdinand Vienna benefit from a fitness centre, a 24-hour reception, and a gift shop.

There are also three restaurants; Meissl & Schadn, serving traditional Viennese cuisine, the Gulasch & Söhne, featuring snacks and small dishes, and the Grand Étage, which is reserved for hotel guests and club members.

The hotel has 186 rooms in 5 categories, with the jewel in the crown being the 100 m2 Grande Suite, with views which extend all the way to the giant Ferris wheel in Vienna's Prater park. The Grande Suite costs from 1000 EUR upwards per night, but Florian Weitzer wanted to make the Grand Ferdinand experience accessible to those with a smaller budget, too, and bunk beds are available in an elegant eight-bed room for a reasonable EUR 30 a night (they can be booked through Airbnb).
